

The architectural site plan illustrates the 'Haus der Kunst' complex, a series of interconnected buildings arranged around a central courtyard. The plan is oriented with 'Sintstraße' running vertically along the left side. The complex features a central courtyard with several trees and a large, open area. The buildings are depicted with various rooflines and internal divisions, suggesting different functional spaces. The plan also shows the surrounding urban context, including 'Sintstraße' and 'Königsplatz' at the bottom. The drawing is a detailed line plan, likely a technical drawing used in the design process.